Bobby the Beaver Cleans Up

KIDS BOOK VIDEOS

Bobby was a little beaver who lived in a snug lodge by Bluebell Pond in Willowmere Wood, but his room was very messy — sticks everywhere, leaves everywhere, pebbles everywhere. He could not find his favorite toy boat.

"Time to tidy up, Bobby," said Mama Beaver.

Bobby felt grumpy. His arms felt heavy, and his feet felt stuck.
"Cleaning is boring," he mumbled.

Mama smiled. "I see you feel grumpy," she said.

Bobby nodded.

"It is okay to feel grumpy," Mama said. "But let us make it fun."
And she sang a little song:

"Tidy, tidy, one, two, three, everything has a home, you see!"

"Tidy, tidy, one, two, three, everything has a home, you see!"
she sang again.

"Tidy, tidy, one, two, three, everything has a home, you see!" she sang one more time.

Bobby giggled. He picked up one stick, then two sticks, then three sticks. He put the sticks in the stick corner, the leaves in the leaf pile, and the pebbles in the pebble box.

Tidy, tidy, one, two, three!

The room got clearer. Bobby could see the floor — and there it was! His favorite toy boat, under a pile of leaves.

"I found it!" he cheered. He felt proud, and his room looked cozy. Everything had a home.

Mama hugged him. "You did a wonderful job," she said.

That evening, Bobby sailed his boat in the bathtub. Splish, splash, splish. It was the best bath ever.

At bedtime, his room was neat and his boat sat on the shelf. Bobby snuggled into his warm bed of wood shavings.

He had felt grumpy earlier. Now he felt calm and proud.
Bluebell Pond hummed nearby — hush, hush, little Bobby.
Bobby closed his eyes. He was tidy. He was loved.

Sleep now, little Bobby.

Sleep now, little Bobby.

The End
