The Blue Jackal

KIDS BOOK VIDEOS

Long, long ago, there was a village at the edge of a thick green forest.

In that village lived a washerman, who dyed cloth in big tubs of bright blue color.

One night, a hungry jackal named Jack sneaked into the village to find food.

But the village dogs saw him! "Bow-wow-wow!" they barked and chased him through the dark lanes.

Jack ran and ran — and SPLASH! He fell into the washerman's big tub of blue dye!

When Jack climbed out — oh my! His whole body had turned bright, bright blue!

The next morning, Jack walked back to the forest. All the animals stared at him with wide eyes.

"What a strange animal!" said the elephant. "No animal in the world is this blue!"

Jack saw his chance and put on his most serious face.

"I am no ordinary animal," he said in a deep voice. "The gods have sent me to be the king of this forest!"

All the animals were frightened. Even the lion bowed his head.
Even the elephant bowed his trunk!

Jack began to enjoy his royal life. He ate sweet, sweet fruits. He napped on the softest grass.

Every day, the animals bowed to their blue king.

Then one night, the moon shone round and bright. Far away, a pack of jackals began to howl — "Hoo-oo-oo!"

Poor Jack could not stop himself. He lifted his nose and howled too — "Hoo-oo-oo!"

The secret was out! "He is a jackal! Just a jackal!" cried the animals.

The lion roared, "ROAR!" The elephant trumpeted, "PAAN!"

The blue jackal tucked his tail between his legs and ran, ran, ran — and never dreamed of being king again.
