Benny Moves to a New Burrow

KIDS BOOK VIDEOS

Benny was a little badger, and he loved his old burrow. He knew every tunnel, every corner.

Then Mama said, "We are moving to a new burrow."

Benny's tummy went all twisty, and his paws felt cold. "What if I do not like it?" he asked. "What if I miss our home?"

Mama hugged him tight. "I see you feel scared," she said.

Benny nodded.

"It is okay to feel scared," Mama said. "New places feel strange at first." Then she told him the badger saying: "Home is where love lives, not walls."

"Home is where love lives, not walls," she said again.

"Home is where love lives, not walls," she said one more time.

Benny packed his favorite things — his soft blanket, his wooden pinecone, and a picture of his old burrow.

They walked to the new burrow. It smelled different. It looked different. Benny felt shy as he peeked inside.

But it was cozy. There was a warm sleeping nook and a little window to the sky. Mama put his blanket in the nook.

"Papa and I are here," she said. "Our love moved with us."

Benny placed his pinecone by the bed and hung the picture on the wall. Slowly, it began to feel a little like home.

That afternoon, Benny explored. He found a tunnel to the meadow, and he found a neighbor mole.

"Hello!" said the mole. "I am new too."

They played together, and Benny felt happy and brave.

At bedtime, Benny snuggled into his nook. His blanket smelled like home, and Mama sang their same old song.

He had felt scared earlier. Now he felt safe. Home was here — because love was here.

The earth hummed softly around them. Benny closed his eyes.
He was brave. He was loved.

Goodnight, Benny.
